Your New Energy Provider: Introducing East Bay Community Energy

East Bay Community Energy (EBCE) recently became the official electricity provider for properties in the City of Dublin. Businesses within Dublin were automatically enrolled with EBCE in June, while residential customers will be enrolled in November. EBCE partners with PG&E for power distribution, customer service and billing while providing more renewable energy at lower rates.

If you are looking for an easy way for your business to go green (or greener!), you can choose to "opt up" to EBCE's "Brilliant 100" service; for the same price you have been paying PG&E, Brilliant 100 offers carbon-free energy (from large hydropower sources).

The City of Dublin recently opted up to Brilliant 100 service for all City facilities and operations. This 100% carbon-free energy helps the City move towards its greenhouse gas reduction targets.

For more details, visit ebce.org or call them at 1-833-699-EBCE (3223).
