Shelter-in-Place Orders in Bay Area to be Extended Through May

On April 27, 2020, the Public Health Officers of the Counties of Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara as well as the City of Berkeley announced that later this week, they will issue revised shelter-in-place orders that will largely keep the current restrictions in place and extend them through May. The new order will include limited easing of specific restrictions for a small number of lower-risk activities.

The Health Officers of these seven jurisdictions have been working closely together in leading a unified, regional approach to protect the health and safety of Bay Area residents.

Thanks to the collective effort and sacrifice of the 7 million residents in the Bay Area, our region has made substantial progress in slowing the spread of the novel coronavirus, ensuring our local hospitals are not overwhelmed with COVID-19 cases and saving lives.

According to the Public Health Officers, it is critical that our collective efforts continue so that we do not lose the progress we have achieved in the Bay Area. Hospitalizations have leveled, but more work is needed to safely re-open our communities. Prematurely lifting restrictions could easily lead to a large surge in cases. As effective as our efforts have been, if the region moves too fast to ease restrictions, the potential of an exponential spread could have grave impacts to health and wellness of residents as well as the economy.
